Approved For Release 2002/06/05 : CIA-RDP77M00144R000800160023-5 $\rm DRAFT:WPB:sm~(16~Mar~76)$

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I am writing to offer our views on H.R. 12048, a bill "Amending

Title 5 of the United States Code to improve agency rule-making by expanding the opportunities for public participation, by creating procedures for congressional review of agency rules, and by expanding judicial review, and for other purposes."

Subsections (b) through (e) of section 553 of the Administrative Procedure Act establish certain procedures to be followed by Federal agencies in rule-making. These procedures include advance public notice of rule-making, opportunity to submit views, and delayed effectiveness of rules.

Subsection (a) of section 553 makes these procedures inapplicable "to the extent that there is involved a military or foreign affairs function of the United States." H.R. 12048 would amend subsection (a) and exempt instead "a matter pertaining to a military or foreign affairs function of the United States that is (A) specifically authorized under criteria established by Executive order to be kept secret in the interest of the national defense or foreign policy and (B) is in fact properly classified pursuant to such Executive order."

The foreign intelligence responsibilities performed by the Central Intelligence Agency are fully excluded from the requirements of section 553

because they fall within the existing general exemption for military or foreign affairs functions. It is our position that foreign intelligence functions should continue to be generally excluded from public rule-making procedures, and we are opposed to narrowing the existing exemption, as proposed in H.R. 12048, to cover only those matters classified under Executive order.

Honorable James O. Eastland, Chairman Committee on the Judiciary United States Senate Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Mr. Chairman:

This is in response to your request for our views on S. 796, a bill "To amend chapter 5, subchapter II, of Title 5, United States Code, to provide for improved administrative procedures.

Approved For Release 2002/06/05 : CIA-RDP77M00144R000800160023-5

The chief reason for maintaining the existing exemption is that it fully protects sensitive intelligence matters from public disclosure and, therefore, achieves society's interest in preserving the secrecy of certain foreign intelligence activities. The exemption proposed in H.R. 12048 would not adequately protect these matters. This is because there are certain intelligence matters which are not classified pursuant to Executive order "in the interest of the national defense or foreign policy. The required by H.R. 12048, but which are sensitive from an intelligence standpoint and the fall under the statutory authority of the Director of Central Intelligence to protect intelligence sources and methods from unauthorized disclosure.

Thus, the proposed exemption would not protect these matters from public disclosure.

In addition, the existing exemption for military and foreign affairs functions should be maintained in light of publicy considerations which militate against any introduction of public rule-making procedures. The foreign intelligence area. A system of rule-making must strike a balance between the desirability of involving members of the public an decisions which directly affect them and the need to conduct the Government's business efficiently and expeditiously. In the foreign intelligence area, society's interest in public participation is slight. The Central Intelligence Agency is not engaged in economic, social or other kinds of regulation which affect the public; nor is it a policy making agency in the field of foreign relations. The Agency was established under the National Security Act of 1947 to correlate and evaluate foreign intelligence and to perform other intelligence-related duties at the direction of the National Security Council.
